washing. In point of fact, his purity is of that milk white order, where there can be no stain or shadow of blemish.

The artists whom the regenerated Barnum is at present engineering are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drayton, Mr. Drayton is an American, educated at Paris, and the hero of many successes at the London Opera houses. Mrs. Drayton, nte Miss Lowe, is a favorite English prime donna. Together they have revived the original Opera Bouffe, which preceded the Italian Opera in Paris, and added a new amusement to the gayest court in Europe in the seventeenth century. The operas have only two solo parts, and combine the attraction of elegant comedy with that of light and agreeable music expressed by excellent artists. The plots of the operettas are French in incident and construction. but the words are English. In Great Britain the parlor operas attracted the especial attention and admiration of the truly pious, who avoid the profane play house as the chiefest work of Beel zebub and the vainest of earthly vanities. The artists are good, and the idea is good. Barnum was a good entrepreneur, as every one will admit. Now he is as good-perhaps betterthan he ever was before. He, with a new entertainment and new artists, the unregenerate Utlman, with fresh artists and several new operas, ought to keep the town alive for a while. So people who have been pining for a consation may make their minds easy. The Chevalier Barnum and impresario Ullman are in the field together. If they don't make an excitement nobody can.

DESECRATION OF ART-PAGE'S VENUS .- There is just now on exhibition at the Dusseldorf Gallery, in the same building with Mr. Chapin's church, a picture by an American artist, the subject of which is the last that we would expect to find in such a vicinage. It is a nude Venus, painted in all the voluntuous attributes of early Italian art, and rivalling in the glowing truthfulness of its flesh tints the master seces of Correggio and Titian. Faulty it is in many respects, but in its sensual characteris ties it is full of the warmth and fire with which the painters of the Erotic School loved to in vest their creations. As an effort of modern art it is wonderful; for in richness, clearness and purity of coloring it is not only exquisitely true to nature, but it reproduces those peculiarities for which the works of the old masters are so much esteemed. From this description it will be inferred how dangerous a subject of the kind so treated must prove in an exhibition which is daily frequented by hundreds of male and female visiters. We know of nothing which tends more directly to deprave the mind fer the very truth and artistic excellence of the picture leave but little for the imagination

We can neither understand the ambition which prompted the artist to make this indisoriminate exhibition of his work, nor the good taste or sense of propriety of the directors of the gallery which induced them to give a place to it. They neither of them can plead ignorance of the effect that it was likely to produce: for, as is well known, the picture was refosed admission, on account of its indecency. at the last Paris Exhibition. The same fate would probably have attended it had it been presented for general inspection at any other of the Continental galleries. Those who have visited Haly and Germany cannot have forgotten the reserve with which pictures of this kind are shown to the public. Although for the benefit of art students they are not refused a place when their merits entitle them to it, it is accorded on the condition that they shall be concealed by a curtain, to be withdrawn only by those who have a professional or artistic motiv for examining them. By this arrangement the scruples of modest females and the innocence of children are protected against surprise, or against what would be almost as undesirable. the necessity of absenting themselves altogether from places in which instruction and amusement can be found. Have we descended so low in our notions of decency that we are to be told in this blunt, practical sort of way that the safeguards with which it is found expedient to surround public morals abroad have no longer any weight with us? If the nude efflgy of the Goddess of Love can be thus enshrined with impunity in our public places, and under the same roof with Christian congregations, it is plain that we must be on the high road to universal license and infidelity. This may be the opinion of Mr. Page and the directors of the Dusseldorf Gallery, but we would fain believe that we have not as yet arrived at such a depth of degradation. If we are right in this conclusion. the general feeling of the public will bear us out, for we maintain that a greater outrage has never yet been offered to the moral sense of a

THE MOZART HALL NOMINATIONS.—The Mozart Hall democracy have made an additional batch of nominations for the State election-some for the Senate, some for the Assembly. We see few or none among them deserving of any consideration. Unless the Mozart Hall democracy rise a little higher in the scale of respectability they will not make much headway in the approaching conflict. Throwing overboard so superior a man as Judge Roosevelt, and picking up and renominating such a personage as Judge Daly, did not speak well for their discrimination; and by their further proceedings they appear to be going down further in the We are willing yet to wait and see if they will be able to recover themselves. We expected little from the Tammany faction, but we did think that the Mozart Hall party would put themselves on their good behavior.

A SHOT WIDE OF THE MARK-JUDGE RUSSELL AND HIS ASSAILANTS .- The decision of the Court of Appeals in the Shepherd case has been seized upon by the Tribune and Express as an opportunity for taking another fling at Judge Russell. They exult over the fact that the rulings of the Court below have been set aside, and point to it as another proof of the Judge's incompetency. Their conclusions, like their premises are wanting only in one element of force, and that is-accuracy. The rulings in question were made by Recorder Smith, and not by Judge Russell; and, therefore, the decision of the Court of Appeals affords no real ground for a crow over his humiliation The fact is, that there is not a Judge on the bench who has furnished fewer opportunities for the gratification of petty malice of this sort than Judge Russell. None of his judgments have been overruled but one; and that having been set aside by the Supreme Court, and carried up to the Court of Appeals, the latter reaffirmed the Judge's decision, reading at the the Home Company, New York.

same time a ve Ty severe lecture to the Supreme Court for its rewarsal of it.

In presence of sa ch facts, it is disgraceful for journals professing to take an interest in the independence and efficiency of the Judiciary to engage in such consist 'nt efforts to calumniate and run down a Judge whose course has been so straightforward, and who has done more than any of his predeces sors to purify and invigorate the administration of justice in New York. As to the Sunday pa pers which hound in with these attacks, it is only what is to be expected from presses which live by the miserable scandal and gossip that float about the city. It is their vocation, and they must follow it or starve.

St. Louis, Oct. 10, 1859. The Santa Fe mail of the 15th ult. reached Independen this morning. Messrs. Otero, Porter and Crenshaw ar-rived, and confirm the attack on the mail party. The In-dians took all the mules, provisions and clothing, but did not molest the mail, which was taken forward by the next outgoing party. The incoming party found dead bodies of four men, supposed to have been Pike's Peakers. Two subsequent attacks on the outward bound mail caused the detention of the incoming party, owing to their waiting for the ox train behind them, having been apprised o strength of two trains probably prevented another at-tack. Particulars of the Duel Between Senator Broderick and Judge Terry . Circinian, Oct. 16, 1859.

The San Francisco Times of the 14th ull. Pays that i ? at ordance with our anticipations the expected duel betwe "senator Broderick and Judge Terry took place yesterday morning, in a small valley ten miles from Mercer Lake The parties went out of town the night previous, passing the night in separate localities. At quarter past six Bro derick and Terry arrived on the ground, attended by their seconds and physicians, Hon. J. C. McKibben and Mr. Hays for Terry. On descending from their carriages the parties seemed to be in the best spirits, neither appear anxious or nervous as to the result. About half an hour was occupied in the arrangements. Ten paces were marked off, and the principals took their positions. The seconds divested them of their outside coats, white collars, and other articles which might present prominen targets; also of their watches and the coin in their pockets One of the seconds then read aloud the code duello, which occupied a short time. Mr. Coulter then addressed th tlemen, saying he wished it to be underso he should count "one-two," after the word " fire," after which he would say "stop;" no shot must be fired During this time the principals maintained their pos flors, and listened with composure to these details. Judg Terry stood with his head thrown slightly back, looking towards his antagonist. Each held a pistol in his hand pointed to the ground. Each was dressed in black clothes and wore a slouched hat. Mr. Broderick stood erect, but with his head rather down. The positions of the two were somewhat different. Judge Terry maintained that of a practised duellist, presenting only the edge of his person, keeping his left hand and shoulder well behind him. Mr. Broderick, on the contrary, though at first assuming a position somewhat similar to that of Terry seemed to prefer a careless and less constrained one, and gradually presented more of his body to the fire of his opponent. He held his pistol rather awkwardly, and seeming to feel this himself, he once or twice turned the wrist of his pistol arm to the right with his left hand, as though endeavoring to comply with some prescribe directions previously given him. From that time he d his right foot got a fraction beyond the line, when Mr ssumed a more practised and motionless attitude, was ot one jot more that of an iron-nerved man than was that of Broderick.

words, "Are you ready?" "Ready," responded Terry and "ready" was uttered by Broderick. Immediately after, "Fire—one—two," was pronounced in moderately quick time. Broderick raised his pistol, and had scarcel ought it to an angle of forty-five degrees from its dow ward position, when, owing to the delicacy of the hai trigger, it was discharged, the ball entering the groun our paces in advance of him. Terry fired a few instant interval in the two reports. At that instant Broderick was observed to clasp his left hand to his right breast when it was seen that he was wounded. He reeled slow ly to the tent, and before the seconds could reach him fell to the ground, his right leg doubled under him, still grasping his weapon.
